

Register of Delegations and Authorisations from the General Manager

Purpose

To establish the accountability framework for distribution of specified powers for efficient and effective exercise of Burwood Council functions.

Background

The Local Government Act 1993 provides the framework for the system of local government in NSW. It sets out responsibilities and powers that constitute that system. Under Section 377 of the Act the governing body (elected council) may, by resolution, delegate to the general manager certain functions of the council. Under Section 378, the general manager may then sub-delegate many of those functions to other officers. Where a power is expressly delegated in part or in full, the person exercises the power in their own right and applies their own discretion subject to any prevailing laws and other policy.

The Local Government Act 1993 also has provision for authorisations. This is where particular functions and powers are conferred directly upon 'authorised officers' who are nominated by the general manager to act on behalf of the general manager or other recognised authority. Local government is responsible for administering or complying with a host of important legislation in addition to the Local Government Act 1993 – for example, the Environmental Planning and Assessment Act 1979. The need to nominate authorised officers commonly arises in the context of these pieces of legislation and supporting statutory instruments.

The power to authorise may be express or implied. Unlike delegations, authorisations may have conditions attached to them. This instrument of delegations and authorisations identifies delegations and express authorisations that are routinely needed to facilitate the effective direction and control of the affairs of council.

UNDERLYING PRINCIPLES

Accountabilities for Exercise of Powers

Council officers exercising powers under the terms of this document are ultimately accountable to the general manager for the consequences of their actions. Any difficulties that arise as a result of these delegations and authorisations are to be reviewed in the first instance with the relevant line manager to whom the responsible officer reports. The general manager reserves the right to suspend, revoke or otherwise modify delegations or authorisations at any time.

Powers of Line Managers in Relation to Those Reporting to Them

These delegations and authorisations are cascaded through various levels within the organisational structure. An officer occupying a position within the organisational hierarchy with a direct reporting line to a subordinate position is entitled to exercise the same powers under delegation or authorisation for that subordinate position, unless this is explicitly excluded by law or separate caveat imposed by the general manager.

Exercise of Financial Delegations

Council officers may only commit and authorise expenditure against budgets for which they are responsible. Budget managers are obliged to ensure financial integrity for their budget areas. Officers must not authorise transactions relating to expenditure that they have personally incurred.
